1. Scope

Danford College students are expected to maintain honesty and integrity in all the academic work. The College's Academic Integrity Policy establishes a comprehensive framework to promote and implement these standards. The policy clearly defines academic misconduct and outlines the disciplinary procedures to prevent and detect the academic misconduct.

The Academic Integrity Policy is in accordance with:

- Standards for RTOs 2015: Standard 1 (1.8 (a,b))

This policy is applicable to but not limited to all current students studying at Danford College, Academic Department and Compliance Department.

2. Purpose

The purpose of the Academic Integrity Policy is designed to maintain the integrity and honesty of students' academic work. The policy aims to achieve the following objectives:

- Promote ethical and responsible academic integrity among students
- Outline clear guidelines on prevention of academic misconduct
- Clearly outline the student obligations and Danford College responsibilities in upholding the academic integrity
- Define disciplinary process to handle if any academic misconduct is suspected

3. Types of Academic Misconduct

Academic misconduct refers to any unethical or dishonest behaviour related to academic work. It can take various forms like plagiarism, cheating collusion, etc.

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is a form of cheating. It is taking and using someone else's thoughts, writings or inventions and representing them as your own; for example, using an author's words without putting them in quotation marks and referencing the source, using an author's ideas without proper acknowledgment and reference, copying another student's work.

Whether Plagiarism is Intentional (associated with an intent to deceive), or Unintentional (associated with a lack of understanding of plagiarism or a lack of skill in referencing and/or acknowledging others' work) it still constitutes as academic misconduct.

Examples of Plagiarism:

- Copying of another student's or author's exact sentences, paragraphs, or creative products (drawings, graphics) without clearly indicating that you are making a direct quote and/or without giving a reference (includes copying from books, articles, thesis, unpublished works, working papers, seminar and conference papers, internal reports, internet, lecture notes or tapes);

- Using other's ideas/work by changing only a few words without clearly referencing the original source;
- Copying computer files in whole or in part without indicating their origin;
- Copying and submitting another student's work, wholly or partially, by changing variable names in computer programs.

Collusion: Unauthorised collaboration on assessable work with another person or persons. For example, if two or more students agree to plagiarise in some way, this is considered to be colluding. It can also occur if two or more students work together on an assignment that they have been instructed to complete individually for assessment.

Cheating: Cheating involves any behaviour by students in relation to any item of assessment which falsely represents the student's effort or performance on the assessment. The act of cheating, whether it is intentional or unintentional, is an act of intellectual dishonesty. Students are expected at all times to act honestly when fulfilling their assessment requirements.

Examples of Collusion and cheating:

- Borrowing a classmate's assignment for the purpose of modifying it and presenting it as your own work;
- Allowing another student to look at your assignment so that they can copy it;
- Using calculators or dictionaries in exams when you have been informed that they are not allowed;
- Whispering answers to another student during a test/assessment;
- Submitting work as your own, which has been written for you by another person
- Copying and submitting another person's work as if it were your own.

4. Prevention and detection of Academic Misconduct

Maintaining Academic Integrity is a student obligation and to ensure the integrity is maintained, Danford College ensures all the students are informed regarding this Academic Integrity Policy.

Information regarding academic misconduct, its prevention and the consequences if academic misconduct is detected is provided to students during Orientation and Induction sessions prior to their course commencement, in Student Handbook, on Danford College website and on CANVAS.

Additionally, the Trainer and Assessor also emphasises on the Academic Integrity to the students throughout their course duration.

4.1 Detection of Academic Misconduct

Assessments submitted via CANVAS:

Danford College uses Turnitin Software which is integrated with CANVAS to detect plagiarism for all the online assessments submitted by the students.

All Trainers and Assessors while assessing students' work, use Turnitin to obtain an originality report, which will reveal the percentage of material plagiarised (against any online resources or copied from other students' work) or inappropriately cited in the assessment.

The acceptable plagiarism percentage is 20% unless if the plagiarism is matching with the assessment template provided by the Trainer and Assessor

Since Turnitin cannot detect plagiarism in text submitted as images, assessments containing screenshots of text will not be accepted unless otherwise advised by the Trainer/Assessor.

In addition to identifying plagiarism, Turnitin can also detect text generated by Artificial Intelligence (AI) tools. While students may use Artificial Intelligence (AI) tools for assistance, directly copying and pasting AI-generated content will be considered as academic misconduct. The maximum acceptable percentage of AI-generated text is 50% in a submitted assessment. Any student work exceeding this limit will be deemed cheating and will be subject to the disciplinary process outlined in section 5 of this policy.

Additionally, the Trainer/Assessor must use their professional judgement when determining the amount or extent of actual plagiarised material in an assessment. The Trainer/Assessor must provide a valid justification for marking an assessment as satisfactory that contains a high level of plagiarism submitted by the student.

All students studying at Danford College can check their own work for plagiarism using Turnitin and make appropriate amendments prior to submitting their assessments via CANVAS. For more information refer to RES_018_Submitting a Turnitin Assignment via CANVAS available on Danford College website www.danford.edu.au
